The only incident of the day's proceedings tending to relieve them of their routine character was the till early in the day between Organizer P H. Scullin and Frank Duffy, during which Scullin and Frank Duffy, during which Scullin was severely criticised and accused by Duffy of irregularities.

One of the speakers was interrupted by a cry of "fire." Immediately the delegation in the rear of the hull rushed for the doors. The panic was greatly increased when the rear doors were thrown open and disclosed that the decoration of the vestibule and stairs leading to the street were in fiames. President Compers rapped loudly for order, and the delegates became calm. The fire originated from some unknown cause, but was quickly extinguished by the ignitor. Delegate Johannson offered a motion refusing a donation of 100 made by H. C. Frick for the entertainment of the Federation delegates. The speaker said the money was tainted with the blood of the Homestead Steel strike, and should not be accepted under any circumstance. The mation was subsequently withdrawn as it was ascertained the contribution had not been paid, and would not be accepted.
